Women's Safety – It is our responsibility

“There isn't a day we don't get to hear about a crime against a woman in India in the news. There are at least five news pieces describing the gruesome specifics of the individual crimes. Seeing the state of women's safety in India is incredibly upsetting, especially in a nation where women are revered as goddesses. To put it mildly, many crimes against women are on the list. India is home to many courageous acid attack survivors fighting for their lives and attempting to survive independently.

First and foremost, we must recognize that women's safety is not just a women's issue, but a societal concern that requires the involvement of men, women, and institutions.

To create a safe environment for women, we must:

- 1. Promote gender equality and challenge stereotypes
- 2. Educate boys and men about consent, respect, and empathy
- 3. Strengthen laws and enforcement mechanisms to prevent and punish crimes against women
- 4. Support survivors of violence and provide access to resources and services

By taking these steps, we can build a society where women feel valued, respected, and safe.

The day women in India will feel safe to do the most basic things like going to nearby shops without the fear of anything is when we will truly succeed as a country.

Let's work together to make women's safety a priority and ensure that everyone can live with dignity and respect. The moment every citizen understands what consent is and starts respecting the women around them is when we can truly accomplish the dream that our predecessors dreamt of. But right now, we still have a long way to go as a nation”
